VATICAN CITY (AP) — Czechoslovakia announced Thursday night it has freed the Most Rev. Josef Beran, Roman Catholic archbishop of Prague, and four other confined bishops. It was a major development in relations between the Vatican and the Communist world.

Archbishop Beran, 74, had been interned since 1961 for refusing to sign a declaration of loyalty to the Czechoslovak government. At one time, Vatican sources said they did not know whether he was alive or dead.

No Help Seen From N-Treaty

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Nationalist China's chief U.N. delegate declared Thursday the test ban treaty has failed to end the cold war or halt what he described as Moscow's grand design to communicate the world.

In a policy speech to the 111-nation General Assembly, Ambassador Liu Chieh said the treaty is a step in the right direction, but that "we should not let our enthusiasm for it blind us to the harsh realities."

Soviet bloc delegates showed their disdain by walking out on his speech, which was in marked contrast with the generally mild tone of most other speeches thus far in the continuing policy debate.

Infantry Quiets Berlin Border

BERLIN (AP) — The American Army flew combat-equipped infantrymen to a troublesome sector of the Berlin border Thursday to counter harassment of U.S. patrols by stone-throwing East German border guards.

For several days Red guards have been bombarding with stones the three-man U.S. military police patrol in the exclave of Steinstuecken. Sources said U.S. authorities decided the East Germans were being deliberately provocative and a firm reply was needed.

Prelates Urge More Preaching

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An American cardinal and an English archbishop Thursday urged greater Roman Catholic attention to preaching, saying it was a basic but neglected Church role and a means of helping the cause of Christianity.

Speaking at the Vatican Ecumenical Council, Joseph Elmer Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis said the preaching obligation has been virtually buried since the Council of Trent 400 years ago. Catholicism then pushed other reforms in reaction to the then fresh Protestant break.

Orbital Weapons Ban Reached

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said an agreement in principle on banning nuclear weapons in orbit was reached Thursday night at East-West talks here.

Gromyko met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home in a two-hour windup session of the current round of talks. Gromyko said he hoped that a conclusive agreement could be reached quickly and that he would confer with President Kennedy in Washington next Thursday.

Manual Control Needed In Space

HOUSTON (AP) — Three of the four United States' manned orbital flights would not have been completed successfully if the pilots had not been able to take the spacecraft controls, a Project Mercury review conference was told Thursday.

Warren J. North, chief of flight crew operations for the Space Agency's Manned Spacecraft Center, reported that real the astronauts relied solely on automatic systems, only Walter M. Schirra would have finished a normal flight.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels, motors and assorted industrials led the stock market to a substantial gain Thursday in fairly active trading that was not dampened much by the second World Series game.

Volume rose to 4.2 million shares from the 3.78 million on Wednesday.

The Dow Jones Industrial average advanced 6.31 to 744.24, bringing it near its historic closing peak of 745.96 reached Sept. 24.

10-Hit Assault Against Yanks

Dodgers Go 2-Up; Podres Wins, 4-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Podres, a magician in a Brooklyn uniform in 1955, and relief man Ron Perranoski put the Los Angeles Dodgers two up on the proud New York Yankees in the World Series with a 4-1 victory in Thursday's second game.

The Davis boys — Willie and Tommy — and Moose Skowron accounted for all the Dodger runs with a homer, two triples and two doubles in the 10-hit attack.

Podres, the 31-year-old left-hander who had beaten the Yankees twice eight years ago in the Dodgers' only Series victory over the Bombers, had a shutout when he was replaced by Perranoski, the ace of the bullpen, with Hector Lopez on second and one out in the ninth.

Daily Record reporter Gil Murray says driving to a World Series game is a big, costly headache . . . dressing room stories and other Series highlights . . . Sports, Page 10.

Lopez, who had slammed his second straight ground-rule double, scored on a single by Elston Howard, first man to face Perranoski, so Podres lost his shutout.

Podres' starting foe, when he stumbled and fell in the first inning, letting Willie Davis' drive to right fall for a two-run double.

Roger Maris contributed to the downfall of young Al Downing, Podres' starting foe, when he stumbled and fell in the first inning, letting Willie Davis' drive to right fall for a two-run double.

The canny Podres, mixing a big curve with his deadly change-up and good fast ball, had the Yankees popping up or bunting the ball into the ground most of the way. When they did get good wood on the ball, the speedy Davis boys caught up with them.

Roger Maris contributed to the downfall of young Al Downing, Podres' starting foe, when he stumbled and fell in the first inning, letting Willie Davis' drive to right fall for a two-run double.

Willie also contributed a second double and scored the Dodgers' final run when Tommy Davis drove his second triple of the day, a tremendous blast to the fence at the 457-foot mark in left center, in the eighth.

The second chapter of the revenge of Skowron on his old mates, who traded him away last winter, included a home run sliced into the lower seats in right near the foul pole, with nobody on in the fourth. It was the eighth Series homer for Moose, the previous seven as a Yankee.

With a 2-0 Series edge over the American League champs who had been 7-5 series favorites, the Dodgers flew home to Los Angeles, confident of closing out this best-of-7 set in their home park at Chavez Ravine. Friday is an open date for travel and they will resume Saturday in Los Angeles with Don Drysdale, 19-17 due to face the Yankees' Jim Bouton, 21-7.

Only one Yankee team ever has lost four straight. That was the 1922 club, and it did manage to stave off disaster for a time with one tie.

Speed Evident

Dodger speed, the subject of much pre-Series conversation, became evident in the first inning when Maury Wills, the base stealing champ, singled through the box and promptly slipped to second. Downing had Wills picked off first but speedy Maury kept right on going and arrived safely with a terrific slide that beat Joe Pepitone's relay to Bobby Richardson.

Jim Gilliam dropped a single into right field and Wills scooted to third.

Then came the big bang in the game. Willie Davis slashed a liner to right that seemed certain to be caught. But Maris stumbled as he went after the ball, slipped and finally slid down on his side, as the ball sailed past for a double, scoring both Wills and Gilliam.

Ben Bella Algerian Top Man

ALGIERS (AP) — President Ahmed Ben Bella assumed full emergency powers Thursday and his government sent out cautious feelers for talks in an effort to end the Berber revolt without bloodshed.

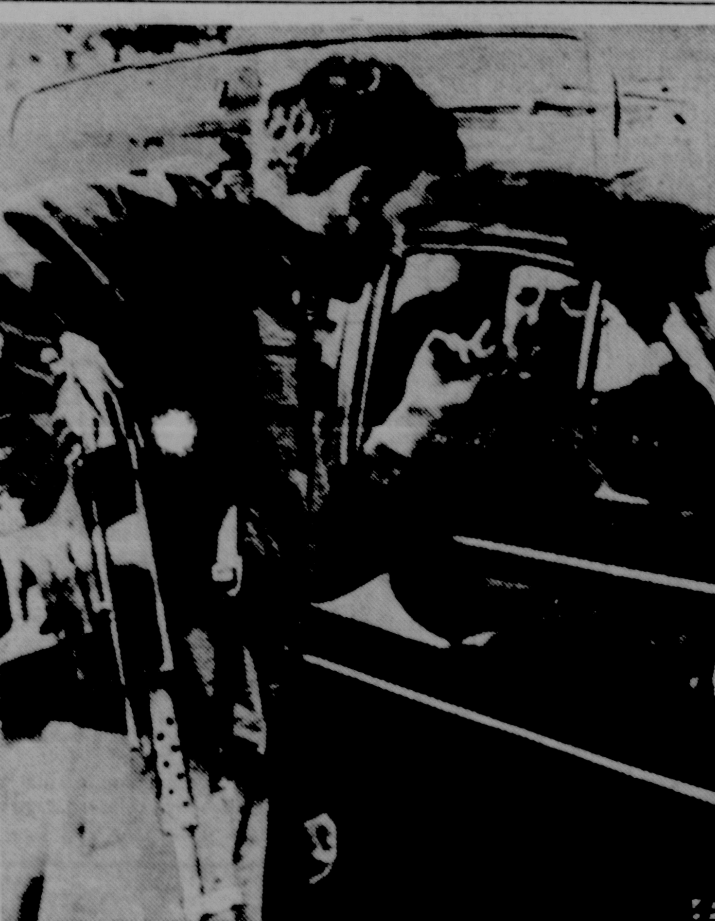

Government sources said there was no immediate reaction from the Kabyle Mountains east of Algiers where fierce-eyed Berbers manned gun positions, vowing to bring down the government.

Ben Bella announced his assumption of emergency powers in a speech before the National Assembly, which numbered only 105 members to applaud him.

"I assume full powers to maintain the integrity of the republic," the president solemnly told the Parliament.

"A criminal counterrevolution is menacing our unity and our territorial integrity."

Ben Bella appealed to his opponents—led by Hocine Ait Ahmed and Col. Mohamed Ou el Hadj—to abandon their resistance, which thus far has failed to produce an armed clash.

Gov. Faubus Attacks JFK On Civil Rights Program

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President Kennedy gruffly and silently heard Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas attack his civil rights program Thursday as an unjustified attempt to deprive citizens and states of basic rights.

With Kennedy sitting stony-faced five feet away, Faubus said: "To abridge or destroy these basic rights will constitute civil wrongs, even though the effort to abridge or destroy may masquerade under the name of civil rights."

The President and the governor appeared on the same platform at the dedication of the Greers Ferry Dam in north-central Arkansas.

Ignored Remarks

Kennedy ignored Faubus' remarks on civil rights, spoke of conservation, and lauded the six-man Arkansas congressional delegation as one of the most important and powerful in the entire Congress.

But in an address at the Arkansas Livestock Exposition grounds here, Kennedy did speak out for "greater equality of opportunity for all our citizens," as the "grand objective of all our programs and policies."

He said the South is changing and that a new South is rising. Several thousand people turned out both at Greers Ferry Dam and at the exposition grounds in Little Rock. But as the presidential crowds usually go, they were on the stumpy side, even though it was a perfect, but somewhat warm fall day.

Several persons in the audience at the dam carried anti-Kennedy signs.

Some read: "Barry Goldwater Is Not Soft on Communism," "Don't Worry, They're Still 90 Miles Away," "Mr. Businessman: A Quote From the President: 'My Father Always Told Me That All Businessmen Were Sons of (blank) But I Never Believed It Till Now.' Read Christian Attitude, Isn't It?"

Several of the signs were removed.

The sign carriers said they were college students from Minnesota, Michigan and Pennsylvania. They would not give newsmen their names.

The five-term governor did credit the President with being a great conservationist and he got a round of applause from the crowd at the dam site for that.

The crowd was as silent as Kennedy as Faubus said: "It is to be regretted that more of the time and effort of the national government are not devoted to such progressive programs—as the dam and the creation of worthwhile projects."

"Instead, we observe a great deal of time and effort being spent in sponsoring unfavorable proposals for the solution of certain social and political problems—proposals which would go so far as to deprive a citizen of the right of trial by jury, interfere with the right of an individual to operate and control his own private business and even his own home and to take from the states, without justification, even more of the rights guaranteed to them under the Constitution."

He spoke up then against any effort to destroy such rights under a civil rights masquerade.

Cordial Greeting

Faubus had greeted Kennedy cordially upon the President's arrival by jet from Washington. He had been invited to ride with Kennedy in cars and helicopters in the brief presidential visit to this Southern state.

But the man who was at the center of the first great school desegregation row in the nation in 1957 has been under some pressure to show no sign of warmth for Kennedy's civil rights program.

Morales Exiled To Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The Honduran army rose Thursday against President Ramon Villeda Morales and announced it had exiled him to Costa Rica.

Reports in neighboring Central American countries said fierce fighting raged in downtown Tegucigalpa before the leaders of the coup claimed victory in the second Latin-American revolution in eight days.

Costa Rica's President Francisco J. Orlich announced that Villeda Morales was expected to arrive in San Jose.

The Nicaraguan ambassador reported that casualties in the Honduran capital included 20 of Villeda Morales' civil guardsmen dead and 50 wounded while the army rebels suffered 2 dead.

While the fighting flared, Villeda Morales, an ardent supporter of President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program, was reported a prisoner in the presidential palace.

Villeda Morales organized the 2,500-man civil guard after an uprising in 1959. Army forces total 5,000 men.

the Little Central American nation, the army struck only eight days after the military in the Dominican Republic threw out President Juan Bosch. Fears had been expressed that the Dominican coup might spur the restless Honduran army to act.

Telephone communication to the outside world were cut. Martial law was proclaimed, along with a dusk-to-dawn curfew throughout the country. The airport at Tegucigalpa was closed. Censorship was imposed.

Only diplomatic dispatches, Honduran broadcasts, and a few private reports seeping out of Tegucigalpa told what was going on in the drab, sleepy capital of 107,000.

Oppose Alvarado

The obvious target of the coup was Modesto Rodas Alvarado, 43, a lawyer chosen by Villeda Morales' Liberal party to run for the presidency.

Col. Osvaldo Lopez Arellano commands the armed forces of Honduras. Havana radio said he heads a military junta that has taken control. There have been reports he was bent on a military coup because he saw no way to prevent the election of Rodas Alvarado.

With the opposition split, the election of Rodas Alvarado had seemed a foregone conclusion.

The opposition leveled charges of voter intimidation and Communist infiltration at the Liberal party. Villeda Morales dismissed the charges as a "reactionary chorus among which one always finds the most conspicuous servants of Honduran dictatorship."

Blocks Elections

The Nicaraguan ambassador said the first indication of the coup came at about 4:30 a.m. when army planes flew over the presidential palace and civil guard headquarters.

The coup obviously was aimed at blocking the presidential elections set for Oct. 13 and came despite U.S. warnings to Honduran military leaders that it opposes unconstitutional seizure of power.

Hagerty Nominated For Congress Seat

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Democratic State Executive Committee nominated former Clearfield County Prothonotary William T. Hagerty Thursday for the 3rd Congressional District seat.

The 65-year-old Hagerty was chosen without opposition at a closed meeting attended by 16 of the 36 members of the committee. Twelve others were represented by proxies.

The committee also gave routine endorsement to candidates recommended for the Northampton County state senatorial seat and six other vacant legislative seats.

And it adopted resolutions in support of a constitutional convention and three constitutional amendments on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Finally, it adopted a resolution criticizing the "deceptive image" of Gov. Scranton's administration and a resolution urging that President Kennedy be renominated for president in 1964.

Johnson, 57, was chosen after the 31st ballot in a seven-hour meeting that ran until early Wednesday morning.

The counties in the district are Clarion, Clearfield, Elk, Forest, Jefferson, McKean, Venango and Warren.

Hagerty emerged as the Democratic choice after State Sen. Lyle G. Hall, 34, of Ridgely withdrew from consideration.

The Clearfield Democrat was prothonotary from 1949 until 1961. He was acting postmaster in the borough from February, 1962, until March, 1963.

Hagerty said he will make the 5 per cent sales tax and political patronage the issues in the campaign.

The candidates for legislative seats, previously announced, included: State Rep. Gus P. Verona, 53, Pen Argyl, a contractor, for the Northampton County Senate seat, left vacant when Democrat Fred B. Rooney was elected to Congress last July 30; Lois B. Taylor, Harrisburg, for the first legislative district of Dauphin County; Edward P. Zempke, 38, Clearfield, Allegheny's 14th legislative district; Walter J. France, Carnegie, Allegheny's 15th district; Paul W. Miller, Pittsburgh, Allegheny's third district; Mrs. William J. Kelly, for the seat in the 28th district of Philadelphia left vacant by her husband's death, and Robert J. Webb, Shamokin Dam, for the Snyder County legislative seat.

Haiti Lashed In Battle With Hurricane Flora

PORT AU PRINCE (AP) — Hurricane Flora, a tropical storm with 140-mile-an-hour winds, lashed Haiti Thursday night. Torrential rains brought business to a standstill in this capital city.

Pan American Airlines canceled its flight into Port Au Prince, a city usually well protected from storms by the surrounding mountains.

Flora figured to hit hardest at the northwest and southwest sections of Haiti, but details of damage in those areas—if any—were not immediately available. The full brunt of the storm was not expected to hit until midnight.

Flora's high winds bowled over telephone lines, trees and television antennas and unroofed several houses on the island of Cap-Haïtien on the northern coast of Venezuela earlier Thursday.

On beyond Haiti, in the path of this wildest storm to come from the tropic Atlantic in two years, the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay in Cuba went on a hurricane alert, prepared to move ships and aircraft out of the danger zone if necessary.

In Florida, residents breathed easier as the hurricane gradually changed its course from west-northwest, in this direction, to northwest. Strong westerly winds aloft promised to drive Flora, a killer that already has taken 17 lives, away from the state.

But forecasters held out no hope at all for Haiti, the poor, mountainous nation which shares an uneasy truce with the Dominican Republic on the island of Hispaniola.

Along with hurricane winds, slashing rains probably will trigger floods on all major rivers and streams in Haiti and send them crashing down the mountains, the Weather Bureau said.

In 1954, a deluge from Hurricane Hazel triggered floods that took an untold number of lives and, in some areas, swept the mountainsides clean of soil and washed it into the sea.

The typical Haitian native lives in a thatched house that offers him pitiful protection from the awesome power of a hurricane.

With some 3.5 million residents, and an area only the size of Maryland, Haiti is the most thickly populated country of the Western Hemisphere and one of the poorest.

The extreme western side of the Dominican Republic was expected to feel hurricane-force winds and forecasters said gales would embrace all of that country except its eastern tip. The Dominican Republic also braced for pounding rain and flood.

Storm tides eight to ten feet high were forecast to precede the arrival of the hurricane. Residents of the Dominican coastal areas west of Santo Domingo, as well as those along the beaches of Haiti, were warned to flee immediately to higher ground.

Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster of the National Hurricane Center at Miami, said there was a strong likelihood that Flora would roar directly across Guantanamo Bay in Cuba's easternmost province of Oriente, the birthplace of Fidel Castro's revolution.

The Cuban radio broadcast warnings to its own people there.

Hurricane Flora stirred up hundreds of miles of seas. Small craft warnings were in effect all the way from the Mona Passage, between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic, to the southeastern Bahamas Islands more than 400 miles away.

Whipping around Flora's calm center eye were the most vicious winds a hurricane has generated since Sept. 14, 1961, when Carla slashed into Texas and Louisiana, killing 43 persons in four states and launching a migration of 400,000 persons out of the lowlands of the Gulf Coast.

The eye of the hurricane was expected to hit near Les Cayes on Haiti's western peninsula about midnight.

Youth Accused Of Killing Four

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Police charged a 19-year-old youth Thursday with the killing of four aged persons, one of them a woman, in a chain of more than 30 burglaries over the last two years.

Capt. Joseph Golden of the homicide squad said 19-year-old Paul D. Ware gave detective an unemotional account of how the victims, unaware of what was in store, met death at the ringing of the doorbell.

Ware is a Negro. His victims were white.

As related by Golden, Ware thrust himself into the homes of the victims, chosen because they were old. Golden said that although Ware admitted the crimes he told detectives he never meant to kill anyone.

The victims were:

Florence Grauley, 83-year-old spinster, who was found sprawled at the foot of the cellar steps in her home on July 12. She died on the way to a hospital.

Dr. James H. Kalbach, 92, a dentist who was getting ready to retire. He was beaten in his home on May 21 and died nearly a month afterward.

Leonard Clark, 92, a retired vice president of the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co., assaulted soon after he had returned home from lunch with friends last Nov. 29. He died two weeks later.

Daniel Gandy, 87, who was pitched down the cellar steps of his home April 22, and died a little later of a fractured skull.

Police said that in the burglaries at these four homes Ware apparently got no more than $300 in cash.

Ware was arrested last Friday. Golden related, as he fled from the house of another aged person — 84-year-old Mrs. Sophia Jacob.

Gambling Raids Net 10 Men

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP)—State police and Internal Revenue service agents arrested 10 men yesterday in gambling raids on nine Altoona business establishments.

An IRS spokesman said the raids are "the first evidence of joint attacks against racketeering in Pennsylvania to be carried out in months to come."

The spokesman said the raids were planned by State Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandro and state police Commissioner E. Wilson Purdy in a meeting with high officials of the U. S. Justice Department.

The men arrested face federal charges of failing to register and pay the $50 wagering tax and state charges of violating state laws and local ordinances prohibiting gambling.

Those arrested were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Patrick D. O'Leary in Hollidaysburg. They waived hearings and were freed on bonds.

Cashier Switches Plea To Guilty

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—George J. Daileida, 56, changed his plea to guilty Thursday to a 34-count indictment resulting from a shortage of approximately $459,710 at the now defunct National Bank of Exeter.

August J. Lippi, 62, president of District 1 of the United Mine Workers, also was named in the 34-count indictment. A former president of the bank, Lippi pleaded innocent to the charges on May 11, 1962.

Daileida also pleaded innocent at that time. There was no indication at Thursday's hastily arranged proceedings before U. S. District Judge William J. Nealon as to what prompted Daileida's change in plea.

Both Daileida, former cashier of the bank, and Lippi live at Exeter. Judge Nealon continued bail of $15,000 for Daileida, who was represented by attorney Joseph Reardon, of Avoca.

Archers Cautioned About Fires

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Game Protectors John Doebing and John Spencer joined with District Forester Gerald Robinson yesterday and urged archery hunters to use caution with fire while in the woods.

Robinson said that the rain of the past weekend and yesterday minimized immediate danger of fire. However, a few days of good winds can dry out the land and present a fire problem he said.

"Fires not only destroy timber and land, but it places manpower and equipment in danger," Robinson said.

Spencer and Doebing added that much of the area wildlife is destroyed by forest fires.

All three urged hunters to make sure campfires are out and break matches after igniting them, and make sure cigarettes are stamped out.

Juvenile Delinquency Curbs

HARRISBURG (AP)—Two major moves in the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency were made Thursday by the Scranton administration.

Gov. Scranton announced that the state police were planning a youth squad as part of the Detective Division.

At the same time, he made public a Department of Public Welfare guide for police handling of children. The guide is believed unique in the nation.

Col. E. Wilson Purdy, state police commissioner, said the youth squad was in the initial planning stage. The ranks of the more than 2,000 state policemen are being surveyed to pick a man to head the squad. He said there were 125 applications.

The commissioner plans to seek

Author Shares Experiences

STROUDSBURG—Fresh from appearances on television and his new autobiographical book "The Early Years of Alice Waugh" just off the press, the prolific British novelist and world traveler shared his experiences as a wayfaring writer with the Dutch Treat Club at their opening dinner meeting last night at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

"One gift a writer, good, bad or indifferent, cannot be taught,

Local Radio 'Struck' Off Air Hour

STROUDSBURG — Radio station WVPO in Stroudsburg was off the air yesterday for one hour and two minutes when lightning struck telephone lines between the transmitter on Godfrey's Ridge and the station on S. Sixth St.

The station went off the air at 3:37 p.m. and did not return officially until 4:39 p.m.

Ernest Transue, station engineer, put the station on the air from the transmitter at 4:16 p.m. and operated on emergency basis until the telephone company placed the lines in service.

the indispensable gift, is that of making the reader turn the page to see what comes next," he said.

Started in 1925
Alice Waugh, now in his 60's, still cannot resist turning the pages of a map into personal experience. His travels started in 1925 because he confessed "of frustration with the post-war world we could not shape to our liking, and irritation at the young women of that day who claimed both the new emancipation and the old Victorian chivalry."

Tahiti, he found, lived up to everything he had hoped from it as a young and footloose male. "Everything writers write about it is true," he confessed but added that "it can also be boring."

Heading for home full of noble sentiments of settling down, he was sidetracked by a love affair

Prisoners Jail Rate Action Off

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County commissioners yesterday tabled action on setting a rate to charge prisoners committed to Monroe County Jail under Act 330.

The commissioners and Sheriff Jacob Altemose conferred on the problem but reached no agreement until after a meeting with Monroe County Judge Fred W. Davis.

The commissioners have set up a consultation date with Judge Davis. However, they haven't received a confirmation yet from the Monroe jurist.

$3.49 Submitted
Sheriff Altemose yesterday submitted the figure of $3.49 as the cost daily per prisoner in the county jail. The commissioners told him to reconstruct his figures and include the cost of food obtained from the county home in Kellersville.

Sheriff Altemose included in his figures, which lead to the $3.49, salaries of jail employees, groceries purchased by the jail, soaps and disinfectants, trash removal and gas.

Act 390 was signed in August by Gov. William Scranton. It authorizes courts to permit certain prisoners to leave jail during reasonable and necessary hours for occupational, scholastic or medical purposes conferring powers and imposing duties upon courts, county commissioners, and sheriffs and other persons in charge of a jail or workhouse.

Distribution of the money earned by a working prisoner is as follows and in the order stated:

The board of the prisoner. Necessary travel expenses to and from work and other incidental expenses of the prisoner.

Support of the prisoner's dependents, if any, the amount to be determined by the court.

Payment of docket costs connected with the commitment of the prisoner.

Payment either in full or ratably of the prisoner's obligations acknowledged by him in writing or which have been reduced to judgment.

Stroud Twp. Ordinances Approved

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township supervisors approved two ordinances, accepting new streets in the township. They requested also the State Highway Department to erect speed limit signs, and install a stand pipe in Cherry Valley.

The meeting was held Wednesday night in the municipal building, N. Fifth St.

The streets approved were an extension of Quentin Rd., and establishing Fairmount St. between Fremont St. and Clearview Lane.

The supervisors approved a letter to the highway department in Harrisburg requesting the installation of a stand pipe near Cherry Creek, near the Mrs. Jeannette Batory farm in Stroud Twp., and permission to post a 35 miles per hour zone from Stokes Mill Rd. north to Leam's service station on Rt. 196.

They also approved payment of the bills for September.

Community Chest Advanced Gifts Unit Reports $44,847

STROUDSBURG — For one happy moment yesterday, it seemed like Christmas in July to those charged with raising a record breaking $112,900 for the Community Chest 1963-64 united appeal — headlines in The Daily Record reported $144,847 in advanced gifts.

However, before they got around to rejoicing over what Community

Chest Agencies could accomplish with that much money, they realized that $100,000 of that amount was not a gift from Santa Claus but a typographical error. The actual amount reported by the committee is $44,847. The rest will have to be raised the hard way.

Monday Meeting
The general campaign will open with a dessert meeting of the 300 volunteers who will cover the county at the Penn-Stroud Hotel Monday night at 7:30. The advanced gift committee whose quota is $79,825 will hold its third report meeting on Wednesday morning, Oct. 9 at 8 a.m. at the same hotel.

We have found from experience that a complete efficient service makes for reasonable prices without any sacrifice in quality or workmanship.

Crimeland Show

The greatest show in Washington this week was the sometimes incredible story of underworld crime and organization told by mobster Joseph Valachi to the Senate Investigation subcommittee.

Thanks to the miracle of television, normal law-abiding citizens and their children (including the youngest who thought it was great) learned the language, rules and crimes of what Valachi called the Cosa Nostra.

That name has sounded phony to us from the start. We have always known our underworld citizens as members of the Mafia. And we read a story somewhere about one New York gangster turning to the other and asking, "Hey, Joe, what's this Cosa Nostra they're talking about?"

Perhaps it is a more refined term used only by the highest bosses in the inner sanctum of what the "soldier" gangsters know only as the Mafia.

That is just one disturbing aspect of the great crime show.

The more disturbing aspect of the testimony, and one that is made very clear over television, is the apparent careful rehearsal that Valachi and the senators had before the show for the public.

Senator John L. McClellan, Arkansas Democrat who heads the subcommittee and has been master of ceremonies for the television show has distinguished himself as the biggest ham actor in Washington.

He repeated Valachi's words over and over again so that every last microphone could hear every last word and the smallest English-speaking child in the nation could understand just what everything meant.

It is true that frequent "translations" of gangster language were needed. But McClellan overdid it.

Why should the senators have Valachi put on such a show?

The answer is fairly obvious although it has not been told fairly to the public.

The show is a public relations warm-up for some new anti-crime laws which Attorney General Robert Kennedy and his Justice Department want Congress to pass as soon as possible.

It is believed that the Valachi evidence will help get the Justice Department bills through Congress. And it may. But the purpose of the television show should be stated clearly to the public.

Two of the bills Attorney General Kennedy wants would authorize wiretapping in the war against crime and would grant immunity from prosecution to witnesses against gangsters while denying them the constitutional right to refuse to testify on grounds of self-incrimination.

Both proposed laws raise fundamental questions of constitutional law and freedom under law for every citizen. They may be needed and it may be possible to write acceptable stricter laws to help law-enforcement agencies in their necessary and valiant fight against the underworld.

But testimony on the proposed legislation itself might be more valuable, although admittedly less interesting, than the Valachi television show.

Pocono Community Concerts

The annual Pocono Community Concert Assn. campaign for members is a one-week effort which ends Saturday.

The membership is actually a ticket to the four concerts sponsored by the association. The ticket must be bought now because none are sold at the door on the day of the concert.

The membership-ticket campaign this week has a direct effect on the quality of the concerts. The more successful the campaign for funds, the better the concert artists will be.

The community concerts have been bringing good music to Stroudsburg for a quarter of a century.

They are held at the East Stroudsburg State College auditorium and are part of the college's music appreciation course. Tickets are in fact sold to students, including college students, at less than half price.

The association headed by Carroll All, president, and Dr. Donald B. Corson, vice president, is a great asset to the community and the community should support it.

Today and tomorrow are the last days to get memberships at the Penn-Stroud Hotel lobby. We urge the community to support the community concerts now.

Comment Of The Day

"The popular concept of forest regeneration is that when a mature tree is harvested, a large space of light is created on the forest floor that is soon filled with tall, straight seedlings 'reaching for the sky.'"

"What really happens is that as soon as a seedling is big enough to be seen, it is immediately cropped off by a hungry deer."

"Instead of tall, straight seedlings we find deformed, spindly, little, woody shrubs usually clipped off at a uniform height of about twelve inches . . ."

"The only alternative then would be a more reasonable control of the deer . . ."

"(But) public opinion is largely, though erroneously based on the number of deer seen at the roadside and political pressure is brought to bear on the Game Commission whenever these easily seen deer seem to be diminishing."

Goldwater Rallies

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON—The Washington metropolitan area has been having an epidemic of rallies for Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona lately. At a big one in nearby Virginia the other evening, a female Goldwater-for-President fan became almost uncontrollably enthusiastic. She rampaged through the sizeable gathering, bellowing the virtues of Senator Goldwater and the shortcomings of President John F. Kennedy.

The wild lady howled that she was a Goldwater "man", and always would be a Goldwater "man".

After extolling the GOP's Presidential front-runner, she took out after the Kennedy family—the whole Kennedy clan down to Macaroni, whose equine antecedents she held up to question. She grew especially vociferous in denouncing Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy.

Finally she got so worked up she shouted:

"Never again will I vote for a man with a brother named Bobby!"

Her collapse was pitiful to behold when a cruel bystander broke the shocking news to her that Senator Goldwater's only brother is named Bobby.

This is to even up some movie-came here for the benefit performance of his gripping new picture, "Charade," he performed a signal service in combating the school dropout problem. The proceeds will be used to aid needy children who have had to drop out of school for economic reasons.

Actors get plenty of recognition for their misdeeds. They ought to get some for their good deeds.

When Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin got up to argue for his amendment to cut the defense budget by $9 million, he told a rather surprised Senator: "Unfortunately, the distinguished Senator from Missouri (Stuart Symington) could not be present, because he had to go to his State. He told me before he left that he wished he could be present to support my amendment."

Proxmire then proceeded to laud Symington as practically the greatest military authority and patriot of all time. The panegyric of praise ended, he yielded to Senator George Smathers of Florida, who was acting as Majority Leader.

Smathers gave a rundown on how absentee senators would vote on the Proxmire amendment were they present.

"On this vote," the Floridian said blandly, "the Senator from Oregon (Wayne Morse) is paired with the Senator from Missouri (Symington). If present and voting, the Senator from Oregon would vote 'yea', and the Senator from Missouri would vote 'nay.'"

I asked a member of the Senate Democratic hierarchy how such a contradiction could have come to pass, and he hazarded this guess:

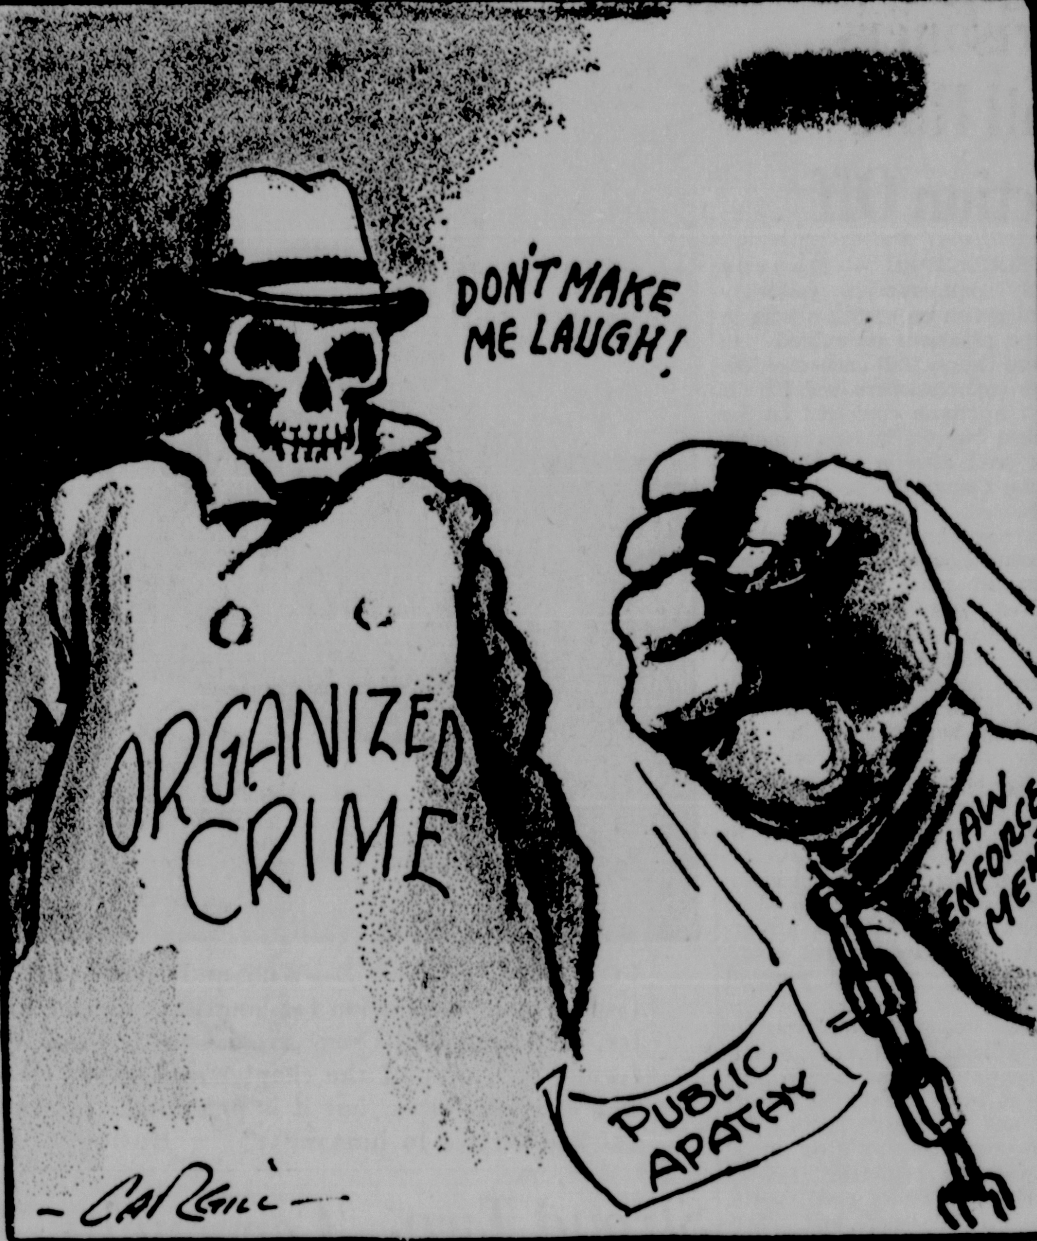

"You know how it is—Proxmire probably grabbed Symington as Stu was hurrying to get away for home and gave him a fast pitch on the amendment. Symington probably gave him a fast, 'I'm for you, Bill,'—and failed to realize it could be ambiguous."

Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester "confessed" the other day that he "may have gone too far" in his optimistic appraisals of the Vietnamese war as seen through the eyes of his chief, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

You know darn well, poor Mr. Sylvester didn't go too far. The man who manages the news is managed by McNamara.

The man who manages the man who manages the news told the newsmanagers what to say, and when events contradicted it, the man who manages the news was ordered by his manager to get up and take the rap.

With this kindly defense of the Defense scapegoat I am off on vacation.

One On The 'Kisser'?

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook:

Front Office Press Agency—In the some nine months that Governor William Warren Scranton has occupied the gubernatorial suite as the first GOP light-foot in eight years, perhaps nothing has so marked the administration as its (tame) "program" of front office press agency.

To those veteran newsmen of the Capitol Hill press corps long calloused to the amateurish soft touch attempts of many a newcomer to the political press agency scene, the efforts of the administration on its forced publicity program have proved not only somewhat mundane but irritating as well.

For example this week a mimeographed page of undulterated political fluff issued by the Governor's Office announced that none other than Governor Scranton himself was "releasing" $39 million in semi-annual payments from the Liquid Fuel Tax Fund to some 2500 municipalities throughout the state.

In the first place the Governor has nothing to do with it in actuality . . . The payment is mandated by legislative action which under terms of the 1953 act spells out the formula for determining what each community shall receive (in toto) each year . . . No function of the executive branch can modify, change or withhold the monies—as in the case with general fund monies.

Secondly, therefore any announcement of the distribution of these funds, with few exceptions during the past eight years, has been made by an underlying of department head level—as opposed to the front office press agency insertion this year of the Governor himself! . . . This column would suggest to Mr. Scranton that he take a hard second look at the modus operandi (if it can be called that) of his press agent who half the time doesn't even have sense enough to return phone calls of newsmen—theoretically one of the basic reasons for his existence in the first place! . . . (Of course then again, what's the difference—"Pennsylvania" taxpayers are paying for it!)

Goodball Of The Week—#3—Earlier in the week over to the Governor's Office to Capitol

Hill newsmen rolled a two-page mimeographed handout excerpting what his gubernatorial nubs would say that night in a speech at Reading, "slugged" for release after 6 p.m. . . . Press associations duly moved their story on the wires (normal procedure) as the Governor saying this and that—the theme being (of all things) "action taken to cut waste out of the State Government" (to quote from the press agency handout itself).

But what happened? . . . The Governor didn't use the speech after all—but rather went off into the favored theme of Pennsylvania's industrial development program . . . So far so good and so far, understandable.

However—in the newspaper business when a change such as this develops, a "kill" is always flashed to media by the issuing office (in this case the Governor's Office) but alas, nary a peep was heard from the payroll in charge of such stuff, gubernatorial press secretary Jack Conny . . . Net result? . . . The wrong story was cleared to move.

A few excerpts from the Governor's un-given speech are perhaps more than appropriate: "It's tough cutting the tentacles of the bureaucratic octopus." "Like Topsy, the government tends to just keep right on growing."

"Efforts to economize by getting a full day's work for a full day's pay continue." "Semiingly the Governor would do well to make certain his own house is in order—post haste, or is the old political axiom 'the public be damned' more appropriate!"

It is doubtful that the latter is the case at all—from what this column knows of Mr. Scranton and from the manner in which we have seen him in action. Nevertheless, the past eight-month sojourn on the press agency front is anything but impressive—and we've been working with gubernatorial press secretaries since 1940.

The Allen-Scott Report

Gag Rule Hit

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Senator Edward "Teddy" Kennedy has reluctantly taken his first politically explosive stand against his brother's administration.

The youngest of the Kennedy brothers secretly joined other members of the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee in blasting the State Department for its laxity in handling security cases and withholding information from Congress.

In a confidential 10-page "Memorandum of Fact," which was handed delivered to Secretary of State Rusk, the senators bluntly challenged the department's banning of security officers and other State Department personnel from testifying before the Senate Judiciary Internal Security Subcommittee.

They demanded that Secretary Rusk personally halt the department's move to oust Otto Otepka, 48, chief of the evaluation division in the department's Office of Security, questioning the validity of the charges against him.

Citing chapter and verse of numerous instances of the department's laxness in handling security risk cases, the senators listed what they described as "untrue" statements made to the subcommittee by a high department official while under oath.

Before joining in the decision to send the explosive memorandum to Secretary Rusk, Senator Kennedy, a member of the full Judiciary Committee, argued against hasty action and suggested a delay for further investigation.

However, after this meek plea failed, young Kennedy later supported Senator James Eastland, chairman, in his request to press the showdown by sending the memorandum to Rusk.

Senator Eastland, who is also chairman of the Internal Security Subcommittee, demanded the head-on collision with the State Department after he learned that Rusk had silenced Otepka, his subcommittee's star witness, and was preparing to oust him because of information he had furnished the senators.

The Rusk Gag — According to the memorandum, the gag order is contrary to Title V, Section 42, of the U.S. code which states that the right of any member of the classified civil service to furnish information to any member of Congress shall not be denied. This law was passed by Congress in 1948.

It also states that the order is in violation of concurrent resolutions of the House and Senate in 1958, which provide:

"Any person in government service should put loyalty to highest moral principles and to country above loyalty to persons, party or governmental department."

These congressional actions and laws have become the focal point in the senators' head-on conflict with the State Department's refusal to cooperate with Congress, and in the Department's handling of the Otepka case.

A Family Problem — This approaching showdown between the congressional and executive branches of government, presents the three Kennedy brothers with one of the most delicate problems of their political careers.

As the lines are now drawn, the controversy pits "Teddy" against his brothers, President Kennedy and Attorney General Robert Kennedy, since they are privately supporting the State Department.

Despite this embarrassing position, Senator Kennedy has secretly kept both of his brothers informed, as best he can, of the Senate investigation of State Department security problems.

Although not a member of the Internal Security Subcommittee, he has used his privilege as a member of the full Judiciary Committee to sit in on the subcommittee's executive sessions.

When one State Department employee, who used to work in the office of President Kennedy when he was a senator, was questioned by subcommittee members, "Teddy" was on hand for the entire hearing, taking voluminous notes.

As reported in an earlier column, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Security John F. Reilly, a close personal friend of Attorney General Kennedy, is one of the central figures in the department's surveillance of Otepka.

This operation of Reilly was arranged through the office of the Attorney General by Assistant Secretary of State Harlan Cleveland, after he discovered Otepka was investigating a number of persons Cleveland had brought into the State Department.

Otepka, one of the department's outstanding security officers, handled the controversial probe of Foreign Service officer William Wieland and his role in our disastrous Cuban policy during the late '50s and early '60s. The Wieland case, which is under investigation by the subcommittee, came to a climax last year when President Kennedy personally defended the State Department official during a nationally televised press conference.

If Secretary Rusk doesn't comply with the senators' memorandum, Senator Kennedy will face another "moment of truth." Senator Eastland has warned Rusk that if the subcommittee's demand is not met, he will ask the Judiciary Committee to vote to release the document.

Dear Abby

She's Burning!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the so-called "coffee date." I am 26, bright, attractive and have a good sense of humor, so I can't be considered a pill. I have been called by many men who are friends of friends and would like a blind date. I am not flattered to be taken to the corner drug store for a cup of coffee and a quick "size-up." One of these gentlemen had the nerve to tell me that I was sweet and pretty but I wasn't exotic enough for his tastes. I don't regret the future dates with heels like him, but I'd like to know—what's the gimmick? This routine is very depressing, and I hesitate to accept any more blind dates. This has happened to my girl friends, too. What do you make of it?

JANET

DEAR JANET: The coffee-date is a good idea. While the man is sizing up the girl, the girl can also be sizing up the man. Why should a man be stuck for an expensive evening with a girl he doesn't care for? And why should a girl waste an evening on a man she finds dull?

DEAR ABBY: I don't smoke, yet on several occasions I found lipstick-marked cigarette butts in the ash tray of my husband's car. Do you think there is another woman in his life?

ANNABELLE

DEAR ANNABELLE: Apparently. But don't let him tell you it came from the miss in the motor.

DEAR ABBY: I went out with a fellow I thought was real cool.

Yours truly,
Mr. K.

Off The Record:

Words Sink In

A good policeman makes a good impression. This is true of Richard (Whitey) Wolbert of the Stroudsburg Police Department.

Two little girls were talking the other day about "Mr. Wolbert." We stuck one of our better ears closer and this is what we heard:

"Mr. Wolbert said we shouldn't talk to strangers or get in a car with them," one explained to the other.

Her listener commented, "Yes and Mr. Wolbert said we shouldn't except candy from people we don't know either."

"Whitey" was guest speaker at a recent Morey School kindergarten class seminar on safety. He pointed out the dangers and hazards that might befall youngsters of that age.

Wolbert certainly got his subject across. Two lassies in the five - year-old bracket can verify this by practically reciting verbatim the Stroudsburg policeman's words of wisdom.

Just to keep the record straight, Al Scavo, the Stroud-burg tonsorial expert, reports that the International Barbera Union is not going to raise haircut prices to $3 or $3.50.

Scavo, who runs a shop on Main St., Stroudsburg, said wire stories erupting from Indianapolis put the union in "bad light" with statements "practically hating prices."

"It is not true," Al pointed out to this corner yesterday. "They might go up if everything else continues to skyrocket."

Current union shop prices in the locale are $1.50 for each haircut and $1.75 for crew jobs.

Rick DePue represented the town of Bushkill Wednesday when Sandy Koufax established a World Series strikeout record in Yankee Stadium.

Rick was quite a ball-player himself not too many years ago. Alumni of Moravian College will remember the exploits on the diamond of the man who is a leading figure in the Democratic Party in Pike County.

Mine Rescue Fund, Tighter Laws Urged

By FRED WALTERS
HARRISBURG (AP)—The drama of the Shepton mine cave-in is being replayed by the state to extract its meaning in terms of future relations between government and the small mine operator.

Pennsylvania Mines Secretary H. Beecher Charnbury already has reached two conclusions: —state government should provide a continuing fund for use in similar rescue operations in the future.

—the laws governing small mines (less than five men) should be made stronger.

The Mines Department also has issued a halt on small mines which—like the one at Shepton—do not have a second access shaft.

It has been five weeks and a day since the rescue operations that caught the nation's attention resulted in the rescue of David Fellin and Henry Thorne from their prison 300 feet underground.

A third miner, Louis Bova, still is missing from the cave-in that caught all three on the morning of Aug. 13. Fellin and Thorne were discovered alive Aug. 18 and finally pulled to safety Aug. 27 through a carefully drilled escape hole.

On The Scene
Charnbury was on the scene from the early morning of Aug. 1 until Sept. 3.

"I'm just now going back to normal," the secretary commented, pacing fretfully in his office here.

It was an emotion-charged experience, he said, that sometimes created awkward misunderstanding.

"For instance, when I visited the scene (Aug. 13-14) before the men were found," he said, "we discovered voids in the slope alongside the cave-in area. These would keep filling up as new cave-ins occurred."

"I wanted to fill the voids—bring in about 700 tons of fill material—to stabilize the mine."

"But immediately there were objections: 'what are you planning to do? Bury those men?'"

"It was that kind of atmosphere."

Charnbury estimates the total cost of the rescue operation at about $400,000 to $500,000.

However, because so much of the time, labor and equipment was donated, the final bill for the state probably will be about $50,000, he said.

It may take years to determine the figure. Bills still are dribbling in on the Knox mine disaster at Pittston in January, 1959.

The question now is where the money is to come from to pay the Shepton bills.

To resolve the problem for future rescue operations, Charnbury has directed the departmental counsel, Deputy Atty. Gen. Leon Ehrlich, to draw up a bill authorizing a $1 million emergency fund.

That would be a continuing fund on which the department could draw to pay for equipment and personnel as needed. The legislation is to be presented to the 1964 Legislature, if the Governor's Office approves.

Resort Owners Deny Sale Of Property To ECC Group

SNYDERSVILLE — Owners of the Twin Pine Lodge and Ranch near Snyder'sville said in an advertisement in today's Daily Record classified advertising section that they have not sold their resort.

The denial followed a story in Tuesday's Daily Record in which it was reported that Mrs. Lulu Lanterman, acting chief tax assessor in Monroe County, told the county commissioners that the property had been sold and that the new owners had asked for tax exemption.

She told the commissioners: "The resort has been sold to the Christian Education Society of the Evangelical Congregational Church."

"The letter I received is from the law firm of Snyder, Balmer and Kershner of 518 Washington St., Reading, and it asks that the property be exempt from real estate taxes."

Commissioner Chairman John R. Lesosne then told Mrs. Lanterman:

"Write them a letter today and tell them that the property is taxable, and if they desire they can file an appeal."

SOME BANKS ARE DRESSING UP

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Federal Reserve Board member said today many large American banks engage in window dressing—juggling accounts to make the banks seem larger than they really are.

The board member, J.L. Robertson, called the practice legal but described it as "morally unworthy" and said "it could be injurious to the prestige of the banking industry."

Robertson told a House subcommittee on government operations that the best way to stop the growing practice is "moral suasion," convincing bankers "that the game simply is not worth the candle in the long run."

Large Family Living Featured In Small But Stately Package

A portico with tall columns and a grand colonial front door attract immediate attention in this handsome home and suggest it must be something far more extravagant than an economical bi-level.

This is not to say the imposing facade is deceptive; on the contrary, there are enough luxury features on the inside to more than justify a stately exterior.

Architect Herman H. York de-

MODEST ELEGANCE—A portico with stately columns draws attention to the front entry which in turn visually minimizes the difference in grade levels in signed the house specifically to provide economical living for a family of six or seven.

He selected bi-level design because of the large amount of living area this type construction provides within limited dimensions. And in York's view "there's no reason why a modest size home can't be nice looking and fun to live in as well as economical."

The house contains up to four bedrooms, two and one-half baths, living room, dining room, kitchen, recreation room, laundry, hobby room, two car garage and plenty of storage space — all within a tidy perimeter of 52 feet wide by 29 feet five inches deep.

The main level contains 1,396 square feet of living area. But the basement is raised out of the ground sufficiently so that what normally would be gloomy cellar space becomes bright, airy and liveable, providing what amounts to a bonus of 765 additional square feet of living area.

One of the most attractive features of the house is a large dining balcony (about 137 square feet) adjoining the kitchen. Because the main level is raised, most bi-levels fail to provide for outdoor living where it's needed most. The dining deck solves this problem.

The mid-entry foyer of this house also is unusual. The main stair, a full five-foot wide, is divided at right angles, with an open railing at the living room. The closed feeling typical of so many split-entry foyers is eliminated; instead there is a sense of spaciousness.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS
An indoor planter is conspicuously located in the foyer, visible also from the living room balcony above. A double coat closet at the entry serves both upper and lower levels.

The living room measurements are 16 feet by 18 feet but actually the space at the staircase, 5 feet by six feet six inches becomes part of the room for decorating purposes. The dining room adjoins, and the two rooms combined offer a sweeping formal zone the full depth of the house.

With the 14 foot six inch by nine feet six inch balcony adjoining, the kitchen becomes a large in-this economical bi-level home. The house contains up to four bedrooms and two and one half baths in dimensions of 52 feet wide by 29 feet five inches deep.

formal family area. There is plenty of room in the kitchen for a breakfast table well out of the way of the work area.

As an economy measure all the plumbing for bathrooms and kitchen is grouped together. The main bath is well located to serve both the living area and the family bedrooms. The master bedroom has its own full bath, together with a spacious walk-in closet.

Closet space is abundant throughout the house, but in the smallest bedroom architect York has substituted a built-in desk with bookshelves above — an ideal spot for undistracted homework.

Downstairs is a fourth bedroom. If not needed for family use it makes a perfect guest room, or perhaps a den. In addition, there is a nice sized room York has designated a sewing room but which could be used as a library, darkroom, you name it.

A huge recreation room leads through sliding doors to a grade level patio. An optional fireplace is designated — and if a fireplace is desired in the living room above it can be built using the same flue.

While turning the "basement" of this house into well-ordered living area, York has not overlooked the need for adequate storage space. Below the entry foyer is a space of about 70 square feet, and there is additional storage space in the garage.

On the outside, York suggests red brick for the portico to con-

"By tying these windows together we have one unit instead of two, and consequently a less busy exterior."

J-95 STATISTICS
A bi-level with four bedrooms, two and one-half baths, living room, dining room, kitchen, recreation room, laundry, hobby room, two car garage, covered portico, dining porch. Upper level contains 1,396 square feet of living area; lower level 765 square feet; garage and storage areas 508 square feet. Overall dimensions 52 feet wide by 29 feet five inches deep.

SAME MAKER
ALWAYS use the undercoat or primer recommended by the manufacturer of the topcoat you plan to apply. Occasionally, one producer's primer will not be compatible with another company's topcoat, or vice-versa. So, for a satisfactory job, recommends the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, stick to the same brand.

SET THERMOSTAT FOR COMFORT
Don't make the comfort mistake of setting your home's thermostat according to the temperature reading.
This is the advice of the Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, which emphasizes that a thermostat setting should be flexible. The only "right" setting, says the Bureau, is the one at which you are comfortable.
Varying outside temperature, humidity, air motion, the clothing you wear, your activities in the house—these factors alone determine what temperature is most comfortable.

Concrete Common Sense
To get maximum results from painting a concrete surface, the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association suggests checking the following points: (1) Surface should be clean and dry. Only exception is when using portland cement paint, which will adhere to a wet surface; (2) Surface cracks, indentations, chips and spalls should be corrected; (3) Underside of earthside should be water-proofed. Otherwise, provide proper drainage; (4) Have sufficient paint on hand to provide a minimum of two finish coats.

PRIME FIRST
PRIME any bare metal attached to your home, with anti-corrosive prime before starting to paint the siding, the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association recommends. In this way you can paint the entire surface at one time instead of stopping to prime and then having to place the ladder against the newly painted siding when you return to coat the metal.

Avoid 6 common traps in carpet buying: choose a Lees carpet

from GENERAL FLOORING

- 1. THE BUYING-BY-FIBER-TRAP. This one says, "Just name a fiber and you've got nothing to worry about." Nonsense. A fiber is just a bunch of fluff until somebody makes it into a carpet. And the somebody should be somebody good.
- 2. THE BUYING-BY-PRICE-TRAP. It's baited with catchwords: "discount," "bargain." Beware. A "bargain" carpet has to skimp. We won't sell you a "discount" carpet. It'd cost you too much.
- 3. THE-BUYING-ONLY-BY-LOOKS-TRAP. It lures you with color. (But are the dyes stable.) Tempts you with texture. (Are the yarns right for the job?) Don't let a pretty face fool you. Find out who made it.
- 4. THE BUYING-BY-HEARSAY-TRAP. There's the Mother-Aunt Millie variety (leaning to wool). And all the opinions (confused) about the great, new man-made fibers. Discuss your requirements with our experienced carpet men. Keeping you out of traps is their business.
- 5. THE-BUYING-FROM-AN-UNKNOWN-DEALER-TRAP. Tricky. A Mr. X may do anything to sell you a carpet. But. Will he be equally quick to honor complaints (if any)? Can he install your carpet properly? Does he care? We most assuredly do care. We're trained to install Lees carpets correctly. We stand behind every one we sell.
- 6. THE-BUYING-WITHOUT-KNOWING-WHO-MADE-IT-TRAP. The biggest. But easiest to avoid. Look for a good carpetmaker. One who scours the world for the best raw materials. Who tests every carpet before it's made for you. Who inspects every square yard for flaws. The "who" to look for is Lees. Look for Lees and don't worry about traps.

Our experts measure and install any size including wall-to-wall carpeting... prices range from $3.00 to $30.00 a square yard.

The operation was the second of its type in Pennsylvania in recent days. Last Saturday the arm of an 8-year-old boy was rejoined at Reading but the arm was amputated Tuesday after gangrene set in.

Miss Sue Harl, Miss Temple University

Two Honors For Local Student

Philadelphia — Miss Sue Harl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harl, of Stroudsburg, RD 5, was recently named Miss Temple University. In that role, she represented Temple University Medical Center in the Miss Liberty Bowl Pageant which was won by Miss Jeryl Clayton. The contest for Miss Liberty Bowl was held in Strawbridge and Clothiers auditorium with Jack Nix, Philadelphia disc jockey as host. Contestants represented the medical profession coming from numerous hospitals and universities in the Philadelphia area.

Earlier in this year, Miss Harl was selected as Temple University's "Outstanding Student Nurse of the Year." The title is awarded annually to a student on the basis of her nursing abilities as well as scholastic standing, poise and personality.

Friendliness Greets Youth On A Bicycle

East Stroudsburg — Touring Europe on a bicycle is a good way to get to know the people. Carl Yost, a junior at East Stroudsburg State College, can report first hand.

He visited nine countries including Russia, staying chiefly at youth hotels or living with European families. Everywhere he found people friendly to him and thankful for the aid given by the United States after the war.

Once a man bought his dinner because, he said, "America has helped us a lot. Now I'll help you."

Yost has also decided that the truism "It's a small world" couldn't be truer. In Moscow, he met a man from Scranton. In Innsbruck, Austria, he met two people who were at the Bushkill Playhouse during the Flood in 1955.

He is willing to share his experiences and his slides to local groups.

Analomink PTA Opens New Year

Analomink — The Analomink Parent Teachers Assn. will hold its first meeting of the school year on Tuesday, Oct. 8 at 8 p.m. at the school.

The attendance banner will be awarded the room with the most parents present, and refreshments will be served.

Just Between Us—

by Bobby Westbrook

I don't know what weather prophets and omen-seekers think about thunderstorms in October, but it certainly took the rest of us by surprise. Maybe it's a happy augury, though, because the news yesterday was definitely on the happy side.

News about our young people: Sue Harl's honors at Temple University; Carl Yost's adventures in Europe by bicycle. News about Miss Dulles, who as Miss Julia endured herself as the first teacher many a youngster in Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg ever had when they attended the kindergarten at the college, the only one in the county at that time.

Happiest idea for corsages I've come across in a long time is the one the Stroudsburg Juniors had for their speaker's table at the district meeting. Instead of the conventional corsages, they had arranged corsages of bunches of multicolored grapes, each decked with greens and a matching velvet bow clipped on with a pin-curl clip. The amazing thing was how effective they looked and how the colors complemented the dresses the big-wigs were wearing. White grapes on white, yellow grapes on green, royal blue on royal blue, black on red — and without pre-arrangement, too.

Ahead In Educational Ideas, State Lags In Practice, Juniors Told

Stroudsburg — In their recommendation for changes in standards for certification of teachers and for inservice training sponsored by school boards, the report of Governor's Committee for Education in Pennsylvania anticipated by two years Dr. James Conant's definitive book "Education of the American Teacher," State Representative Jeanette Reibman told northeast district Junior Women's Clubs at their meeting at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Mrs. Reibman, Easton attorney who served as chairman of the House of Representatives Committee on Education and also a member of the special committee on education, was the featured speaker at the dinner of 80 representatives of Junior Clubs in an eight-county area.

Theme of the conference was "Junior Focus on Education." Mrs. Reibman spoke on "Education, Innovations in Pennsylvania."

Anticipate Conant

Dr. Conant's book, which was published two weeks ago, is causing a stir in all educational circles, and criticizes the nation's standards of certification. The Pennsylvania committee also questioned those standards. Mrs. Reibman reported, whereby certificates were granted to those who had completed the required number of courses.

Seeking to balance study in depth of a subject matter with courses in how to teach, particularly on the elementary level, committees have been set up to evaluate institutions and their method of coordinating liberal arts with the so-called "education" courses, she explained, in an experimental program. Approved institutions may grant certification to those of their students they feel qualified to teach in specific fields.

In-Service Training

The committee was also at one with Dr. Conant's recommendation that school boards provide for in-service training of teachers particularly in fields where there have been drastic changes to keep teachers abreast of current ideas, she said. She urged the Junior clubwomen to work with their school boards to promote such workshop programs.

While innovations in ideas for education in Pennsylvania may have been ahead of the times, education in Pennsylvania has lagged, she said. Pennsylvania ranks low in the number of its students who go on to higher education.

Need Community Colleges

Community colleges, which she defined as two-year colleges offering academic credits which could be transferred to liberal arts colleges or terminal courses to qualify students in semi-professional fields, have been recommended with enabling to permit communities to establish colleges geared to their own needs within a master plan.

Pennsylvania's economy, geared for so long to coal, iron and railroads, is shrinking with them and in order to attract the new industries in electronics and related fields the state must offer trained students and retrain workers in fields being usurped by automation, she said.

My 1970, 300,000 children will be ready for college in Pennsylvania, Mrs. Reibman predicted. To serve them the 14 state colleges are being asked to almost double and Penn State University to expand, with hopes that community centers of technical training and centers for continuing adult education will absorb the rest.

Small Schools Can't Do It

Mrs. Reibman also touched briefly on the controversial school reorganization plan. While opponents "wave the red flag of loss of local control," she said, the state is charged with responsibility for providing education since the Free Schools act of the 1800's.

"Small school systems just can't do the job," she said, pointing out that for the same money which a high school of 1,000 could offer 36 high school courses, a consolidated school of 4,500 could offer 50 courses.

"Present home ec and shop courses are not sufficient vocational training in a world which needs technicians, computer operators and programmers. Our high school must offer meaningful technical and industrial education for both industry and the future worker," Mrs. Reibman said.

Scholarship Loans

She also urged support of the amendment to permit guaranteed scholarship loans for college students which will appear on the ballot in November.

Mrs. Reibman's talk followed a rapid-fire summary of the "direction and directives" of the education department of the Pennsylvania Federation given by its chairman, Mrs. David Kohlers. Locating drop-outs and working to have them continue their education, teacher recruitment, stamping out illiteracy, aid to libraries and to continuing education were among those directives to which she added continuing education for members through correspondence or home reading courses.

Local Club Host

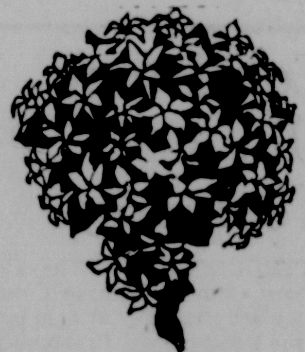

The Stroudsburg Junior Woman's Club was host to the third annual district meeting with Mrs. Augustine Concilio, federation extension representative, calling the meeting to order. Mrs. Paul Edinger, Jr., president of the Stroudsburg Juniors, gave the invocation, and Mrs. Ora Hoffman, Monroe County's Junior representative, gave the benediction.

Mrs. Hoffman also reported for the local Junior Club during a summary of activities by junior representatives from Columbia, Lehigh, Luzerne, Monroe and Northampton Counties.

Closing talks were given by Mrs. A. Kyle Kerstetter, secretary of the state federation on "Confessions of an Ex-Junior."

It's A Rocky Road To Yankee Stadium

Podres Helped By 'Other Guy's Park'

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Podres said his biggest advantage Thursday was that he was pitching in the other guy's park.

"The Yankees hit a lot of balls real good," Podres told reporters after the Dodgers took a 2-0 lead in the World Series by defeating New York 4-1.

"Mantle probably would have had three home runs today if we had been playing this game in Dodger Stadium," Johnny said. "Mickey didn't get any hits off me but he hit me real good."

Podres had not faced the Yankees in a World Series since 1955, when he beat them twice, pitching a 2-0 victory in the seventh game. He was working on another shutout with one out in the ninth inning Thursday, but Manager Walter Alton brought in relief ace Ron Perranoski after Hector Lopez hit his second double of the game.

"I told the skipper I was tired," Podres said. "And we had Perranoski in the bullpen. Sure, I'd like another shutout but there's no sense fooling myself when we've got the greatest relief pitcher in baseball."

Podres agreed when a reporter said he didn't appear to be pitching hard in the first inning or two.

"I didn't have real good rhythm at the start," John said. "And I was probably a little nervous. But after a while I got my feet on the ground."

There was a lot of racket in the Dodger clubhouse, but the players were not wildly excited about the victory.

Alton was asked how he felt about going home with a two-game lead.

"It don't mean a damn thing," he said, "if we don't win two more."

Maury Wills said the Yankees "are not invincible."

"They apparently haven't discovered that yet in the American League," a newsmen said.

"Maybe they haven't got the proper thinking," said Wills. "But don't make me sound like a pop-off."

Gloomy Bunch Of Yanks Agree: 'Bad 1st Inning'

NEW YORK (AP) — A gloomy bunch of New York Yankees agreed on one thing:

"We should have gotten The Kid out of the first inning without any scoring. We missed the pickoff and then Rog fell down."

Spokesman for the beaten American League in the second World Series game was Elston Howard.

Here was the situation as the Los Angeles Dodgers won 4-1 and went two up on the Yankees.

Al Downing, "The Kid" who is only 22 and was making his first Series start, faced as the first batter the fleet Maury Wills.

Wills smashed a single through the box that Downing almost got his glove on.

Then the Yankee first baseman, Joe Pepitone, called for the pick-off. Downing made a quick throw to first as Wills leaped at for second. Pepitone threw hard to second.

He said afterwards he thought it was on the bag, but from the pressbox it appeared wide.

"It looked to me," said Pepitone, "as if Bobby Richardson was coming fast to get the throw and his momentum carried him off the bag. He had to come back and by then Wills was safe."

Then Jim Gilliam lashed a single to right, moving Wills to third and Gilliam took second on the throw to the plate.

Willie Davis promptly smashed a liner to right that appeared well within the fielding capabilities of Roger Maris, but the Yankee right fielder took a step in and then turned back. As he did, his cleats dug up a hunk of turf and he fell. By the time he could return, the Yankees had scored. "I threw a lot of fast balls," he said, amid the swarm of newsmen and photographers that surrounds the game hero. "It was my best pitch."

"The game I won in 1955 wasn't anything like this one. I threw a lot more slow stuff in that game."

How did the two games compare for thrills.

"This was a big game, sure," he said. "It gives us two straight in their park. But remember, the other one was for all the marbles."

He meant money, of course. Before the game, Podres said the secret of his success in World Series games—he has now won four, more than any other Dodger pitcher in history—and other important assignments is that "I probably get more worked up than other people."

"Little Tense"

"I was a little tense at the start," Podres said, "but I was all right after I got my feet on the ground. I didn't try to pace myself, with a team with so much power. You can't, or you might find yourself out of the game right away."

In the clubhouse, Podres walked around mopping his balding brow and talking in turn to the Dodgers he felt helped him the most.

"Not bad pitching for an old man," one of his mates shouted. "I was only 31 my last birthday," Podres said, assuming a hurt expression in his moon face. "And that was last Monday."

Daily Record Reporter Reaches Into Pockets

By GIL MURRAY
Daily Record Reporter
NEW YORK CITY — Getting in and out of Yankee Stadium on the day of a Series game without blowing your top is next to a miracle, I'd say.

First of all, it cost a Pennsylvania resident $1.50 in tolls for the honor of treading on sacred New York City land.

You would imagine that with a cover charge your troubles would be over once you invaded Gotham.

That is, until you hit the traffic, speeding its way up the Harlem River Drive headed for the Stadium.

Your trouble really begins when you finally reach the Stadium. If you are fortunate enough to miss hitting pedestrians — pedestrians who include very valuable Dodgers and Yankees, ex-New York Gov. Herbert Lehman and television star Jack Paar, among other glittering names — you may find a parking space.

I pulled into a parking lot that advertised in bright, large Gothic lettering, "Parking $1."

This is the actual dialogue which took place between me and the parking lot attendant.

Me: "Do you have any spaces?"

Him: "That depends."

Me: "On what?"

Him: "How nice do you ask for one?"

Me: "How about $1.50?"

Him: "Speak nicer."

Me: "$2."

Him: "Nicer."

Me: "$3."

Him: "Very nice."

After this harrowing dialogue, I trekked the mile to the Stadium and literally fought my way to a very crowded press section.

Once in my allotted 18 inches of working space I settled back to watch one Johnny Podres beat the Yanks in a very lackluster ballgame.

The trip back? You will have to wait until next year for that. Because the trip home had me so scared I am going to wait right here for next year's Series.

That way, I will have only a one-way fight back to Stroudsburg.

A New York taxi driver said: "Well, the Yanks are two down already. I hope it only goes two more. Not that I like the Dodgers so much since they left Brooklyn."

I just like the Yankees less. They've had their share. Let somebody else have it now."

One guy reported overhearing the following conversation on the subway ride to the Stadium:

"I hope this isn't the last stop. It says 'Polo Grounds' here."

"No, don't worry, pal. They ain't playing today."

Someone in the stands asked, "Who's throwing out the first ball today?"

"I don't know," answered an obvious Yankee fan. But I sure hope it isn't Koufax."

"The worst thing that happened to the Yankees in this Series was that Mantle and Maris were able to play—and I'm a Yankee fan, too," said one roofer at the game. Another Yankee fan commented after the game: "This is the first Series I can remember that I didn't lay out even one bet. Sure picked the right year."

Benefit Dance

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg A's of the Pocono Mountain Baseball League will hold a dance and cake walk at Shaffer's Inn along Rt. 209 near East Stroudsburg tonight.

The affair is being held as a benefit for the ball club.

Wall Withdraws

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Art Wall, Jr., Philadelphia district PGA champion from Pocono Manor, Pa., withdrew Thursday from the $125,000 Whitmarsh Open Golf Tournament because of an injury to his left arm.

Wall telephoned officials when the swelling of the arm did not respond to overnight treatment.

Coates Unsung Hero

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Ron Coates started kicking field goals for fun, but now he's doing it for real as the unsung hero of Penn State's Nittany Lions.

Coates, a substitute quarterback, used to go out early with the kicking specialists during practice sessions last year and try to match them "just for the heck of it."

Coach Rip Engle watched quietly. Then one day before the Rice game he told Coates to get ready, he probably would be doing some kicking.

One week later, Coates booted his first sure enough field goal, a 32-yarder against Army.

"He's a tremendous kicker, the best one we've had in my years at Penn State," says Engle in high admiration of the 195-pound junior from Belle Vernon, Pa.

Coates finished last year with five field goals in eight attempts and 15 of 18 extra point tries for 30 points.

His 30-yard boot against California proved the margin of difference as the Nittany Lions beat the Bears 23-21.

"This year Coates' kicking again is playing a key role in State's attack. Last week against UCLA, Coates had to boot two field goals for the price of one to give the Lions a hard-earned 17-14 victory. The first attempt from the 18 was nullified by a penalty. So he split the uprights a second time from the 22.

Coates has kicked two of three field goals this season, both for 32 yards. His first came against Oregon in State's opener. He also is two for two on extra points. His longest field goal was 36 yards against Pitt last year.

Ironically, Coates is the one man who doesn't like to talk about his kicking. He'd rather talk about becoming Penn State's number one quarterback.

"He comes that close to being a real good quarterback," says backfield coach Joe Paterno. "If there is any drawback at all it's a lack of quickness in his hands and running. He's a natural passer."

Golf Tourney

MARSHALLS CREEK — The Mountain Manor Golf Tournament on the Blue Ridge course will be held Oct. 19. Entry fees must be in by Oct. 16 at the pro shop.

Philadelphia, Dallas Seek First Victories In NFL Tiff

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Eagles and the Dallas Cowboys, each seeking their first victory of the season, square off Sunday at Franklin Field in the fourth game of the NFL campaign. Kickoff time is 1:35 p.m.

After tying the Steelers (21-21) the Eagles lost to the Chicago Cardinals (28-24) and the New York Giants (37-14). The Cowboys were beaten in their opener by the Cards (34-7) and lost on successive Sundays to Cleveland (41-24) and Washington (21-17). So today's conflict will find both Eastern Conference clubs desperate for a victory.

Good Shape

Fortunately, both clubs will enter the game in good physical condition. The Eagles' Sonny Jurgensen was hampered by a bruised throwing hand last Sunday, but is expected to be nearly 100 per cent for this afternoon's battle.

Ted Dean celebrated return to starting status last week by totaling better than 200 yards overall for the Eagles and is listed to start again at fullback.

The only changes planned by Nick Skorich, the Eagles' head coach, will be at middle linebacker (Dave Lloyd for Maxie Baughan); right linebacker (Baughan for Lee Roy Caffey); and left defensive half (Ben Scott for Nate Ramsey).

Don Meredith is expected to get the starting call at QB for the Cowboys with little Edue LeBaron in reserve.

Tom Landry, Cowboys' boss, has deviated somewhat from last year's system of rotating Meredith and LeBaron on every series. For instance, Meredith went all the way against the Sins last week.

The game will mark the sixth time these two clubs have met with the Birds losing once, a 41-19 pasting in Dallas last year.

Schoonover Shifted To Fullback

Special To The Daily Record

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Bill Schoonover, the former Stroud Union sensation, has been shifted from his left halfback post to fullback for this week's encounter with Holy Cross.

Orange coach Ben Schwartzwalder, irked by his squad's 10-0 blanking by Kansas last Saturday, announced he is replacing fullback Jim Nance with "Schoonie" Nance, the 220-

From Skydiver?

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — Chester High School, with a 2,500-seat stadium, has been drawing around 100 to 200 fans for its home football games recently—probably because the team hasn't won in 20 games.

Chester Dan Staffieri announced Thursday a plan to entice fans into the stands Saturday for the game with Marple-Newtown — a skydiver will parachute from 5,200 feet and deliver the game ball to the referee just before the kick off.

The skydiver, Robert Fallenda of nearby Wawa, will free-fall for about 20 seconds before opening his chute, and hopes to come down around the 50-yard line.

pounder from Indiana, Pa., is likely to be among the missing in the Saturday starting lineup for Syracuse.

The switch is only one of several for the Orange as Schwartzwalder began revamping the starting lineup.

Schoonover's left half job probably will go to Billy Hunter, a 185-pound junior speedster. "Billy was our best offensive back against Kansas," said Schwartzwalder.

Shifts Duckett
Right half is up for grabs. The Orange pilot has shifted Nat Duckett, the 200-pound junior from Fountainville, to right half from the No. 2 fullback post. However, incumbent Mike Koski will battle Nance if he gets off the injured list. Duckett gained 103 yards rushing from the fullback slot against Boston College two weeks ago.

cident that Schoonover got the jersey.

Although beset by injuries the past two seasons, Bill's play has left little to be desired. In the few games he played last year, he did more than just rack up the ground yardage.

"Bill's as rugged as they come," says Ben. "He's a strong runner, and almost more important, he's an excellent blocking back. He can knock out an end on a quarterback rollout, or he can slip by him and become a pass receiver. He's a good one."

The 5-foot 11-inch, 200-pound Schoonover piled up 195 yards and a 5.0 average last season, despite

Greene - Dreher Boards Seek Extra Cafeteria Help

NEWFOUNDLAND — The Greene and Dreher Boards, meeting at Southern Wayne Joint School this week with Lawrence Grimm presiding, voted to recommend to the Wallenpaupack Area Joint School Board that an additional person be hired for the cafeteria staff this year.

Two cafeteria personnel are presently serving from 180 to 190 students daily, approximately 60 to 70 per cent of the student body.

There was a complete explanation of the new school district reorganization plan by Clayton Northup, principal of Southern Wayne. Bills totaling $819.08 were approved for payment by the joint board.

Two Applications

Two applications for the position of janitor at Southern Wayne after February 3 were received. No action was taken. A new janitor will be needed when the present janitor, Joseph Moraski, begins his duties at the new school on Lake Wallenpaupack.

The board approved a request from the Newfoundland Rotary Club for the use of the school on October 1, 15, 22, 29 and November 6 for the community planning seminar.

Present for the meeting were Lawrence Grimm, H. W. Hutchins, Bruce Banks and Peggy Bancroft, Greene; Fred McLain, Charles Phillips and J.R. Burdick, Dreher, and Mr. Northup.

Campout Postponed Again

NEWFOUNDLAND — Campout plans have been postponed again for Troop 129, BSA, and have been set for Columbus Day weekend instead of this weekend.

The matter was discussed during the meeting of the troop at Southern Wayne Joint School at which Richard McLain was in charge.

An official inspection of the troop was held, with good results, and with these scouts reporting: Steve Smith and Bruce Henry, both new scouts; Warren Van-Busckirk, Gary Shupe, Ben Nevin, Larry K'no, Steve Cross, Tom and Jim Wasyluk, John Glessner, Gary Ossmer, Paul Daly, Jim Gilpin, Dave and Don Dickinson, Timmy Baughman, Roland Marro and Ralph Caggiano.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

For Friday, October 4, 1963

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You'll find that the time is ripe and you have properly planned your course. You can stand an artistic touch, finesse without ostentation.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — A lively outlook. There's room for advancement in several areas. If you have had to be under some restraint recently, you may step more freely now. But not recklessly, of course.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Putting off until tomorrow is everyone's temptation at times. Don't let this or other "tricksters" beguile you during this somewhat mixed period. But do not suspect everyone of — thing either. Be discriminating.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Under the sun's potent influence you should gain impetus, seek new ways to improve, eliminate waste motion. Ambitious projects, well-managed, should work out well.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — It's time to race to the finish line now, but stay in there, pitching, maneuvering adroitly but always conscientiously, and remember, "The doer alone succeeds."

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A favorable period for personal improvement, increasing knowledge, sharpening skills. Aim only for highest objectives. You can attain much now.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Certain conditions prevail that may seem more complicated than they are; others appear less complex, but be careful here not to be misdirected, caught off guard. Care in romance.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Aspects stimulate your power and enterprise; also bring tendencies toward stubbornness and envy. Emphasize your T.E.S. self. Conduct all negotiations diplomatically.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — An unavoidable late start need not prevent you from "catching up" but needless tardiness could set you back for some time. Days ahead call for better than good effort.

January 24 to February 10 (Aquarius) — What is similar is not necessarily the surest road to success. You figure out preferable, more feasible ones. But have patience, be vigilant and precise. Watch trends.

February 11 to March 20 (Pisces) — Where the obvious means to success are skimping, you figure out preferable, more feasible ones. But have patience, be vigilant and precise. Watch trends.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You're today are straight-forward, dignified, roughly talented, capable of carrying a heavy load with responsibility and normally, without grumbling — wonderfully helpful. You expect traits and complexities in life, so are a jump ahead of the fellow who frets about "all there is to do." In emergencies, you are extremely capable. Many jurists, law-makers and statesmen are Libra-born. Your generosity and intuition are strong. Birthdate of: Rutherford Hayes, 19th U.S. Pres.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a historical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Important Ways To Look For Fall and Winter

STROUDSBURG (ABW) — At last . . . a fall fashion season that really has something to offer. Never have we seen so many, many wonderful ways for a female to look. There are styles to suit each type of feminine personality . . . all with an individualistic touch.

The Look that seems to have made it really IN . . . The Layered Look, which consists of really smart planning of various "layers" of clothing. It could be a soft, imported Italian mohair sweater worn over a turtleneck dickey or classic shirt with a great tweed wrap skirt or wool culottes. There would be the extras . . . such as the leotards, the silk ascot, the boots, all adding to this look of layers. Even the coat or jacket you might add as the weather cools . . . would play an important role to this Look! You can go really wild . . . and dramatic with this look.

Another important look . . . the Sportive Look. This is tailoring with a flair. This look is expressed best by suits, coats . . . great new hats (as seen in the Wyckoff Millinery Department.) and the boots.

When it comes to evening . . . our dress department at Wyckoff's has some beautiful ideas. Everyone is in love with the plush, cut-velvet dresses . . . guaranteed to steal the scene at any party. There are beautiful crepes, soft velvets, silks and other lush fabrics made up into lovely fashions. Free and easy styles that are ever so gently shaped for new flattery.

At Wyckoff's . . . take a look to plan a LOOK. Our fall and winter fashions are ready to put you in the fashion limelight. Colorwise . . . and style wise.
